A beautiful fall day set the scene for the inaugural Wilders Wagyu Stay Wild event. With a large crowd and over 100 people online, the bidding was very competitive on sale day. Animals and genetics were sold to ten different states, Canada and Australia. The event itself was as first class as one could be – the animals and the farm were presented as good as any. The hospitality was second to none as Wilders Wagyu kicked off the event with a live concert and dinner the night before that featured country western star, Kameron Marlowe. Also the evening before, an embryo donation was auctioned off to benefit the One Compassion foundation. This donation was purchased by Corey Alsobrook from Texas at a price of $1900 per embryo (4 embryos in total). Wilders Wagyu founders and owners matched this price and in turn brought over $15,000 to the foundation. Sale day was launched with a sausage and egg breakfast featuring the Wilders Farm Berkshire pork. This was followed by a lunch enjoyed by all in attendance right before the auction began. In all, this was a superb and successful event for both Wilders Wagyu and all in attendance and many are already excited about Stay Wild '24.
